The next generation of PDT combines Levulan with the recently FDA-cleared Isolaz, a vacuum-tipped machine that generates broad-spectrum light to treat acne and evacuate pores. Mitchell Chasin, MD, a Livingston, New Jersey, laser surgeon, is currently evaluating the duo. After a first pass with the Isolaz to "pull out sebum and dead cells," he coats skin with Levulan, then does a second round of Isolaz. "A clear passageway could let Levulan penetrate even deeper into the dermis," Chasin says.
